Trail Highlights

- The Jenny Creek Trail begins to the east of the Ho-Hum chairlift and climbs south along the trees bordering the eastern edge of the downhill beginners' slope. It passes behind the top of the ski lift, and then turns left into the woods.
- There is a junction for the alternate lower route, which skirts the edge of the developed Nordic area. If you choose to go this way, please follow the signs that indicate the public access route.
- The trail climbs to an old road, and then turns left and heads down. Be prepared for a right turn in the middle of the hill. The trail descends through the woods. At 1.6 miles, it meets with the old Jenny Creek Road and turns right, up along the creek.
- To the left, the Jenny Lake Road drops gently along the creek for 0.8 miles to the gate at the boundary of the Eldora Nordic area.
- Up the creek, in a quarter mile, the Guinn Mountain Trail #820 forks right (north). Another 0.8 miles up the Jenny Creek Road, there is a four-way intersection with the cutoff to the Guinn Mountain Trail. To the left (south), another side trail continues to the Moffat Road.
- Advanced recreationists may wish to continue the remaining 2.2 miles to Yankee Doodle Lake. Watch for snowmobilers.
